What Will Stalin Offer

Shall We Become Perennials?

Much Abused Big Business.

Dry Violations As Usual.

By ARTHUR BRISBANE

Copyright, 1931, by King Features Syndicate, Inc.

PRESIDENT HOOVER calls 60 leading citizens, representing business, finance, to help Walter S. Gifford meet the unemployment problem. Such a probelm calls for such ability and intelligence as we have, but "what is everybody's business is anybody's business."

Dividing responsibility among 61 is not a method that usually achieves success.

Across the ocean, Stalin, at his name we are supposed to shiver with virtuous horror, will soon offer a suggestion to improve world conditions, saying, according to International News, "this is no time for petty envy or stupid rivalry. The present crisis affect the proletariat (workers) of all nations. The Soviets will co-operate with capitalistic countries in every honest effort to maintain peace and insure economic welfare."

It will be interesting to see what Stalin has to suggest. In this country, we haven't any definite suggestion, except feeble charity, which amounts to nothing, and a firm determination to avoid the dole.

THIS IS IMPORTANT to old ladies and gentlemen that would like to stay on earth longer than nature usually allows.

Cornell university has changed an annual plant, one that dies, and must be planted every year, into a lasting perennial, by treatment with x-rays. Man as a mixture between an annual and a perennial biped, last but a few winters, and then must go.

From his head to his feet, microscopic enemies, including millions of intestinal bacteria, attack man from birth. Science might find a way to attack them, and postpone the inevitable death. Sometimes it is necessary, as Ling Cornaro, said of himself "to live to be 90 in order to know that the world is beautiful." On the average it takes us 70 years to learn that life is interesting, and nearly all of us are taken from life when it begins to be worth while.

AT THE INSTITUTE of politics, Williams Institute, our "big business" is cruelly criticized by learned gentlemen.

The various "high brows" agree that "big business" lacks humanity, is too much interested in dividends and millions, not enough interested in human beings.

You feel about "big business" in these depression days as the stranger at the funeral felt about the corpse.

When there was no response to the request "will some friend of the deceased say a few words," the stranger rose and said "I have never heard of this corpse in my life, but I'm a friend of any man who has as few friends as he has here."

You can say for "big business," that at least it provides everything necessary for happiness, if the mass of human beings would take the responsibility for what is wrong in the country, use their brains and their votes.

"BIG BUSINESS" has 25,000,000 automobiles running in America, millions of bath tubs, and has raised wages from below $1 a day, as in the time of Washington, to above $5 a day in 1929.

THURSDAY IS DOLLAR DAY IN 100 STORES

Merchants Ready for Semi-annual Event Here.

MANY BARGAINS

Tri-state District Shoppers to Invade City.

One hundred East Liverpool merchants will participate in the thirty-third semi-annual Dollar Day sale to be conducted here Thursday, August 27, under the auspices of the Retail Merchants division of the Chamber of Commerce.

Thousands of thrifty shoppers from all parts of the tri-state district will invade the Pottery City to share in the numerous bargains which will be offered for one day only. Dealers in the following lines of merchandise will take part in this special trade - promotion event: Furniture, dry goods, shoes, men's wear, jewelry, hardware, drugs, millinery, furs, women's and children's ready - to - wear clothes, sporting goods, farm implements, electrical supplies, confections and automobile accessories.

Shipments of new merchandise have been arriving here for the last several days in preparation for the sales day. Extra sales people have been engaged by all the stores to assist in handling the crowds.

Bona-Fide Bargains.

Every Dollar Day article will be a bona fide bargain, merchants claim. Values ranging from $1.25 to $2 and $3 and in some cases even more may be purchased during this one-day sale for $1. In addition to the annual effort of the merchants to place attractive bargains on the counters for the shoppers, the universal price reduction that has been marked in virtually all retail lines throughout the country this year will aid the thrifty buyer to save the greater part of his or her earnings.

With the current period of unemployment, general business depression and low levels in grain, fruit, produce and clothing markets, it has been necessary for the people of the community to use the best of judgment in expenditures and to obtain the best values and greatest return for the money. Dollar Day is the greatest opportunity of the year to spend judiciously and obtain the best values for the money.

Free Parking Offered.

For the convenience of the out-of-town shoppers, who will drive their automobiles to East Liverpool during the day free parking space will be provided. If parking space is not available on the streets parking tickets at the West Sixth street parking lot will be provided. Shoppers are requested to ask for parking tags when making their purchases.

Members of the Retail Merchants' division participating in the sales campaign may be identified by the large yellow Dollar Day emblems which will be displayed in the show windows.

TO TRANSPORT SCHOOL PUPILS

High School Students To Use School Bus.

The high school students and eighth grade pupils living in the Glenmoor district will be transported to the public schools here in the school bus, beginning with the opening of the 1931-32 term on September 8, it was decided at the board of education meeting Friday night.

The school bus will operate over the Lincoln highway only temporarily, until such time as the bus is needed on another route or convenient service is established by motor coach between the city and the Glenmoor zone, the board ruled.

The approximate 30 high school students will be brought to the high school building, while the eighth grade pupils will be transported to the Pleasant Heights schools.

Granting the use of the school bus temporarily to the Glenmoor zone solves a serious problem for the school patrons in the region of Stop 55 since the suspension of service of the Y. & O. railroad made it almost impossible to reach the schools here except by automobile. No motor coach lines have been established with convenient schedules for the use of the school children.

GERMANS MAY FLY ATLANTIC

Aviators Hop Off on Flight Which May End in United States.

By The Associated Press.

BERLIN, Aug. 22.—Willy Rody and Christian Johanssen, German airmen, hopped off this morning for Lisbon on a flight which may carry them across the Atlantic to the United States.

Fernand Costa Veiga, a Portuguese, also was aboard. They were flying a 300-horse power plane formerly owned by Charles A. Levine, American aviation enthusiast.

Superstitious about announcing their attempt or being photographed before the start, the fliers surrounded their preparations with secrecy as far as possible.

Mechanics said their plane was equipped with special tanks carrying enough fuel for forty hours in the air.

Johanssen, an experienced pilot, was at the controls and Rody was doing the navigating.

HOLD-UP MEN SHOOT IT OUT WITH POLICE

Upper Manhattan Scene of Daring Robbery Friday.

RECOVER LOOT

Two Policemen, Taxi-driver, Child Also Victims.

By The Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Aug. 22.—A gun battle between police and two payroll robbers extending for 12 miles in streets of upper Manhattan and the Bronx and lasting an hour and a half cost six lives last night. Twevе other persons were wounded by bullets.

Two policemen, one robber and a taxi driver accompanying the robbers were killed outright. The other robber died in a hospital as did a baby who was hit by a stray bullet. Three policemen, two firemen, and seven bystanders, including two women, were sent to hospitals with bullet wounds.

Hunt Gun Toters.

The city's 19,000 policemen were under orders today to put every unlicensed gun holder behind bars.

Patrolman Walter D. Webb and Lloyd Fromhoff, paymaster for the Mendoza Fur and Dyeing company, arrived in an automobile at the company's yards late yesterday. They brought a payroll of $4,619 from a bank. Two robbers accosted them. As Webb reached for his pistol both robbers fired, killing him.

The robbers threw Fromhoff out of the car and drove away at Third avenue and 163rd street. They abandoned it and got into a taxi driven by Herbert Hasse, 27, and resumed flight. At Boston Post road Motorcycle Patrolmen Edward Churchill, suspicious at their dizzy speed, raced after them and fired. Two bullets hit him in the abdomen and he fell off his machine, dead.

Firemen Wounded.

Vincent Hyde, a city fireman, who happened by, snatched the policeman's pistol, hopped a taxi and fired at the fugitives. A bullet dropped him too. He was seriously wounded.

Three other persons, including Gloria Lopez, aged 4, were struck by robbers' bullets at this point as the Lopez family automobile swung into the line of fire. Gloria died ten hours later.

Three policemen in a taxicab closed in but the gunmen sped away towards Morris avenue and 162nd street, where two more policemen attempted to shoot them. These two were felled by bullet wounds.

At Dyckman street and Broadway, the three policemen in the pursuing taxicab forced the bandit car against the curb. Hasse, the taxi driver, was killed outright as was one of the robbers, John Preschtl. The second gunman, Martin Bachorik, died a few minutes later.

Taxi Bullet Punctured.

The taxi used by the pursuing detectives was bullet punctured and its windows shattered.

When a lone patrolman yanked open the bullet-marked cab, of the robbers, the package of stolen money was found intact. In the back there were 71 empty shells and seven pistols.

In Greenwich Village, another policeman, Bertrand Ray, crashed into a truck while speeding serum to be used in an attempt to save the lives of the two policemen. He was taken to a hospital. His skull was fractured.

BURGLARS GET $1,292 IN BIG HAUL AT SALEM

Mortgage Company Safe Rifled Friday Night.

By Brush-Moore Leased Wire.

SALEM, O., Aug. 28. — Theft of more than $1,300 in money and jewelry from the safe of the Chattel Mortgage company office, East State street, and the attempted robbery of the Church Budget Envelope company, South Ellsworth avenue, were being investigated today by Salem police.

Jewels valued at approximately $1,292, as well as $85.50 in money were stolen from the mortgage company office, Thomas Cadwallader, secretary-treasurer of the company, reported to police. Attempts to break into the Church Budget company's safe failed, and nothing of value was taken, according to James A. Pidgeon, manager.

The robbery at the mortgage company office is believed by police to have occurred between 5 and 7 p. m. after the offices closed Thursday. The safe was opened by the burglars without difficulty, the thieves apparently being familiar with the working of the combination.

Included in the loot were 11 diamond rings, four watches, an Italian cameo ring, a silver meshbag, a gold bar pin and a lavalier. The money was the day's receipts of the company. Valuable papers in the safe were untouched. The jewelry represented security for cash loans made by the company.

Tools used in the attempted robbery of the Church Budget company safe were stolen from a workshop in the plant, Pidgeon told police. Attempts were made to break the combination off the vault but the burglars were either frightened away or gave up the job when their efforts failed in the opinion of authorities.

Finds Surplus

BEVERLY HILLS, Cal., Aug. 22.—No matter how bad depression gets and how short we become of the necessities of life we never seem to run out of material to put on a commission.

Mr. Hoover just got a hold of a book called "Who's Who for No Reason at All" and appointed 60 men. That breaks his own record for quantity, if nothing else. He picked every bank president and corporation head who have handled their own affairs so ably in the last year and a half that it is their stockholders that constitute the present needy.

Yours,

Will Rogers

CHAMBER HAS PLAN TO HELP UNEMPLOYED

Cleveland Body Urges Street Work for 2,000.

By The Associated Press.

CLEVELAND, O., Aug. 22.—The Cleveland Chamber of Commerce stood sponsor today for a new unemployment relief measure to employ many thousands of men filling in ditches along uncurbed highways, after installing tile where needed to improve the drainage, prolong the life of the roads and to eliminate one of the most serious of all traffic hazards.

The chamber already has taken steps to put it in operation in Cuyahoga county, and is endeavoring to have Ohio highway department officials adopt it.

The plan is unusual in that almost its entire expense would be for wages. Where tile would be used, generally small sizes would be ample.

The engineering requirements are simple, and the plan is one which could be put in operation with almost no delay.

The chamber estimated 2,000 men could be employed 30 hours a week for six months at 50 cents an hour on approximately 50 miles of ditched highways in Cuyahoga county. The work could continue until winter and be resumed in the spring.

The chamber claimed by grading over the ditches into well-rounded "shoulders" and the use of tile where needed, drainage of the highways could be improved. The resultant prolongation of the life of the highway, it said, would recompense for the cost of the filling-in project.

In addition, the chamber emphasized the desirability of removing ditches because they are the contributing cause of many fatal accidents.

MAIN OFFICES OF MANSFIELD JOURNAL HIT

Nightwatchman is Cut by Broken Glass.

OTHERS ESCAPE

Paper Active in Law Enforcement Campaign.

By The Associated Press.

MANSFIELD, O., Aug. 22. — A bomb, tossed from a speeding automobile, rocked the plant of the Mansfield Journal at midnight last night, slightly injuring the night watchman and shattering the windows surrounding office buildings.

The blast which occurred in the basement near the front of the building, tore up a portion of the floor of the business office and damaged furniture and fixtures. Virtually all of the windows in the building were blown out.

J. V. Richardson, night watchman, was cut by flying glass. Fifteen other employes in the building were uninjured.

Sees Speeding Auto.

Richardson, in the business office one floor above the place the bomb exploded, said an automobile drove up the alley separating the newspaper plant from a hotel building. It slowed down, he said, and then sped away. A few seconds later the blast shook the downtown section.

After an investigation, Mansfield authorities sent word to Cleveland police to watch out for a dark gray Packard sedan with a trunk on the rear. It was believed the occupants of the car were implicated in the bombing.

The Journal is published by Samuel A. Horvitz and David Gibson of Cleveland. They also publish the Lorain Journal. The Mansfield Journal, one of two papers in the afternoon field here, was started about a year ago. It will celebrate its first anniversary September 1.

Threats Received.

In seeking a motive for the bombing, officials recalled that just before publication of the first issue, a series of threats were received, warning them the Journal would never be allowed to run.

"The threats were anonymous," George J. Kochenderfer, managing editor, said today. "Since then, the plant has been constantly under guard."

The explosion will not hinder publication of the paper, Kochenderfer said. The blast did no injury to valuable machinery in the press and composing rooms.

Continue Gangster Fight.

Expressing the belief that the bombing grew out of the Journal's editorial policy of supporting law enforcement, the newspaper, in an editorial today said it would continue to urge that gangs be wiped out by authorities and that all lawless activities be warred upon by the police. Mr. Kochenderfer said, "Our attitude on law enforcement will be continued as in the past."

Executives of the Journal today posted a $500 reward for the arrest and conviction of persons bombing the plant or higherups who paid for the job.

BIDS WILL BE OPENED SEPT. 1

Government to Repair Floating Equipment.

Bids for the repair of almost the entire government floating equipment of 26 crafts on the Ohio, Monongahela and Allegheny rivers will be opened Sept. 1 by federal engineers of the Pittsburgh district. The work will consist of repairing three derrick boats, eight steel barges, nine steel dump scows, one covered wooden barge; three dipper dredges, the United States No. 1, the Ohio and the Oswego and the steamers Swan and George S. Nutt. More than 15 tons of structural steel and steel plates and one and one-half tons of rivets will be required to make the necessary repairs.

This will be the first time the work has been done by outside labor, since in former years it was done in the government boatyards at Lock No. 4 on the Monongahela. The liquidated damages for delay in completing the work within a specified length of time has been placed at $380 a day.

Managers of the sidewheel steamer Julia Belle have announced that the boat is enroute to Pittsburgh today after completing a successful excursion tour of the Ohio river as far as Louisville. On a number of trips the boat was taxed to capacity.

The following five boats were locked through at Dam No. 8 on the Ohio river last night and today: The Old Reliable, Parkersburg to Pittsburgh, with one empty barge; the Queen City, Cincinnati to Pittsburgh, with 150 tons of merchandise and 95 passengers; the Helen E, Pittsburgh to Parkersburg, with 15 tons of merchandise; the Benwood, Pittsburgh to Bellaire, with nine barges of coal, and the Isthmain, Pittsburgh to Mingo, with six barges of coke.

The Ohio river is stationary today with stages of 15.3 and 8.8 feet in the two pools at lock No. 8.

MARINE CORPS GENERAL MAY RETIRE SOON

Butler to be Recalled If Needed Hoover Explains.

By The Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 22.—The stormy figure of Major General Smedley Darlington Butler is soon to pass from the marine corps.

President Hoover yesterday said he would be willing to grant the fighting marine's request for retirement with the understanding that his services will be readily available in time of war.

This hard-hitting, straight-shooting descendant of Quaker forebearers has not missed a chance to fight in the 33 years since he entered the service, in uniform or out.

As a "leatherneck" campaigner and leader, as an energetic civic reformer setting out to "clean up" a great city, as the outspoken critic of foreign dignitaries—the pride of the devil dogs has known the publicity spotlights more often than any other marine.

His comrades will miss him, men who have served under the dynamic general would follow him "through hell and back."

Outspoken and energetic, the wiry general packs all of his 140 odd pounds in everything he does. Whether it be leading a cheer or a charge, making a speech or storming a Haitian fortress.

Boy and man, he has been in the corps for most of his nearly 50 years. In private life he expects to spend much of his time defending it.

Upon his retirement October 1, Butler plans "to tell some of these people who abuse our corps where to get off."

There has been some talk of his running for election to the senate or to the house as a Republican representative of the Philadelphia suburban district where he has bought a home.

As democratic as he is a dramatic, Butler, now commander of the Quantico, Virginia, marine base, probably calls more of his men by their first names than any other general.

He recently has been engaged in controversies involving such widely diversified personalities as Premier Mussolini of Italy, Alphonse Capone, the gangster, and the Haitian minister of the United States.

In a Philadelphia speech last January he declared Mussolini had run down a child and failed to stop his car.

The remark precipitated Butler into a full-sized international episode which ended with a state department apology to Mussolini and plans for court-martialing the general. The court-martial later was dropped.

Three months later the general placed a bony forefinger on a newspaper headline quoting Dantes Bellegarde, new minister from Haiti, as saying that a Hataian fortress for the capture of which Butler received his second medal of honor was non-existent. The general abruptly challenged the statement and brought from Bellegarde the explanation that he had been mis-quoted.

Shortly before, Butler had declared in a Chicago speech that Al Capone would be deported "when public opinion becomes aroused."

When Philadelphia borrowed Butler during 1924-25 to act as director of public safety, he fought bootleggers and other lawbreakers relentlessly until replaced by another man.

A similar mission brought him a leave of absence from the marines last May and carried him to Oregon where he reorganized the state police at the request of officials.

In 1926 Butler had Colonel Alexander Williams of the San Diego marine base, his host at dinner, court-martialled on charges of drunkenness.

Since the time in 1898 when he enlisted in the marines at 17 by putting his age up a bit," General Butler has served in Cuban waters, the Philippines, China, Porto Rico, Panama, Nicaragua, Mexico, Haiti, and France.

Among his decorations are two medals of honor, for gallantry in Haiti and at Vera Cruz; distinguished service medals of both the army and navy for his work as commander of camp Pontanezen at Brest during the World War; a boxer rebellion brevet medal; two French and one Hatian decorations and 10 campaign medals.

Intangible of High Value.

Although the tangible assets of business houses may and probably will fall off during periods of depression, the intangible assets of the same houses, under certain conditions, may have an equal, if not greater, value than ever before.

Such is the view expressed by the department of commerce in Washington this week, explaining that the value of trade names, good will and other intangibles increases with age, and no depression can lessen the value of these assets which it has taken years to build up if those possessing them keep them before the public.

Intangible assets, as the commerce department sees it, may be decreased in value only when a firm fails to advertise. The organization which continues to advertise during a business recession will find its intangible assets worth more when the recession period is ended than before it started, even though its intangible assets be meanwhile much reduced.

When normal conditions again obtain, the organization will be in better shape than it could possibly be in had it not kept its intangibles before the public.

Although it takes years to develop intangible assets, they may be greatly reduced in value in a matter of months. The department of commerce illustrates this by using a trade name. It may be a household word today and yet may be forgotten and almost worthless a year hence if it is not kept before the public.

Some may hold that the department is playing in with advertising mediums by this exposition of its view, but such a view will in no way lessen the strength of its position, for it has presented a truth which the lessons of the years have demonstrated can not be controverted.

There is nothing which increases more rapidly in value when ceaselessly cultivated than such intangibles as good name and good will.

Insurance to Answer a Need

This week was marked by the introduction of an absolutely new form of burglary and robbery insurance, a policy so comprehensive as to carry protection against practically every form of modern criminal enterprise by violence. It is described by the National Bureau of Casualty and Surety Underwriters as "an answer to the universal need of the small shopkeeper to obtain blanket coverage." Because of the fact that the new insurance is sold at a flat premium charge, it costs but a fraction of what the insured has previously had to pay for anything like similar protection.

The new policy, which was designed especially for small merchants in cities, villages and rural districts, not only covers burglary and robbery as indicated, but also kidnapping involving the compulsory opening of a safe by the victim, robbery in the home of money or securities used in the business of the insured, burglary from a bank's night depository, property damage growing out of a burglary or robbery and safe and open-stock burglaries. It is called the "storekeepers burglary and robber" policy, but as indicated herein the name hardly begins to tell the story.

The announcement of the National Bureau of the Underwriters, which refers to it as "the new all inclusive policy," states that it "is free from exclusions and offers continuity insurance, by which is meant that full protection is afforded for the policy term without additional premium charges no matter how many bona fide robberies there may have been during that term."

The rates for the policy, which provides for a total liability of $1,750, divided into seven indemnity paragraphs affording $250 each, vary according to the location for which the policy is issued, ranging from a maximum charge of $50 for such areas as Chicago and Cook county and Detroit and Wayne county down to $35 for communities in such states as Florida, Nebraska and Minnesota. Strange to relate, this minimum rate applies to the Bronx and Queens county in New York, which may be taken to indicate that the company issuing the policy figures the risk to be run in Cook county, Ill., and Wayne county, Mich., is almost one-half greater than in counties adjacent to New York.

There is no ground for disputing the statement that there is a need for such a form of insurance as that of the policy made effective this week, and there, no doubt, will be demand for it, but the fact that there is recognized need for it is a sad reflection upon the trend of the times.

Contrasting Pictures

From London come reports that an economy program calling for drastic cuts in the British budget will be laid before a special session of parliament the first week in September. Just what these cuts will be is not yet known and will not be for some time, as the cabinet committee made up of Premier MacDonald, Foreign Secretary Henderson, Chancellor of the Exchequer Snowden, Dominions Secretary Thomas and William Graham, president of the board of trade, did not report to the entire cabinet until Wednesday and its decisions were not presented to a joint meeting of the general council of the trade union congress and the national executive committee of the Labor party until Thursday.

But there is ample indication that it is the intention of the Labor government to make most decided slashes in governmental expenses to meet the threatened deficit of £120,000,000, approximately $500,000,000. This is made plain by the appeal of Premier MacDonald, Home Secretary Clynes and other British leaders to the people of Britain to prepare themselves for sacrifices, and the calling into council of its political foes, Stanley Baldwin, former conservative premier; Neville Chamberlain, former conservative chancellor of the exchequer, and Sir Herbert Samuel, emergency chief of the liberals during the convalescence of David Lloyd George. It is no secret that Premier MacDonald asked the conservative and liberal leaders thus summoned to stand with the government in the planned budget cut "for the good of the country," in the face of the financial crisis which must be overcome. Were all less lacking to show that the Labor government contemplates radical action in budget slicing it would be had in the premier's appeal to the British people to meet the situation in a manner reminiscent of world war times and be prepared to tighten their belts, if necessary, to overcome it.

How different the situation there and over here. Great Britain preparing to make sacrifices to meet a threatened deficit of $600,000,000, and opposition party leaders supporting the government to accomplish that end. Here in the United States various elements in congress planning to increase expenditures in the face of $1,000,000,000 deficit, opposition party leaders and Republican renegades snipping at the administration. In Britain, country is put above party. Here at home, party and a desire for publicity, if not vengeance, put above country.

"Minnesota" Plan Old Here

One reason for Ohio's substantiality is that its agriculture, for many years, has been operating on a policy similar to the "Minnesota" plan, now attracting wide attention in severely depressed agricultural states.

In summary, the "Minnesota" plan promotes diversified planting and the raising of crops for home consumption, along with poultry, dairy products and the like. It already has proved the economic salvation of many sections devoted to one-crop planting. The farmer who became poorer year by year through raising only wheat or some other single crop and neglected even to raise the vegetables for his own table and provide milk for his own kitchen, has prospered by diversifying his planting.

Throughout Ohio wide range of planting is universal. There is no such thing here as a crop failure, unless drouth wipes out all vegetation, for if disease or insects take one crop or if the market fails, there is something else to bring in an income and generally there is some source of revenue throughout the year.

This plan of making the farm self-supporting has been broadened during the last year by a return to pioneer system by which each farmer provided year round storage of his food. Inflated demand for his goods had turned the farmer in boom times away from his only work. He sold his fresh vegetables in the summer and bought them back in cans in the winter. Sold his excess cattle and his hogs to the packer and bought his meat from the butcher.

Observers indicate general return to the old times. Farm women are filling their cellars with rows of home-canned goods, more rural residents than ever before are turning their pigs into salt pork, smoked hams and sausage for use this winter. Potatoes, cabbage and turnips are to be buried in straw lined heaps, kettles will be busy making apple butters and the choppers will be turning late cabbage into sauer kraut.

It appears that Columbiana county and the rest of Ohio have a long jump on the "Minnesota plan" for reports show that not only are supplies being raised but much needed foodstuff is being stored against the day of use.

When Lemons Blush Pink

There are too many "ifs" in a government announcement of the discovery of a pink lemon to make the statement entirely satisfactory.

Displayed for the first time this year the lemon with a rosy blush is said to be a "bud sport" or freak offspring of the lemon tree which is now grown to some extent on the west coast for its ornamental value rather than for the fruit which is produced sparingly.

Not only the skin of this new citrus but also the flesh and juice are decidedly pink this occasioning at once the idea that pink lemonade in the circus may become a reality without resorting to artifice.

Here is where the "ifs" come in. Department of agriculture experts are not at all certain that trees propagated from the freak will bear the same characteristics and if it should be found that they still bear pink lemons instead of reverting to type the objections remain that they probably would taste like lemons in which event no one could be convinced that it was real authentic circus lemonade.

CHASE'S "STINGER" TO MCDOWELL.

By J. H. Galbraith.

By The Associated Press.

A letter written by Salmon P. Chase in 1862 to Gen. Irvin McDowell reflects the popular resentment of the time to the dilatory movements of the Union forces, and shows how freely Mr. Chase, then secretary of the Treasury in Mr. Lincoln's cabinet discussed with his fellow Ohioan (General McDowell was born in Franklinton now west side Columbus) and criticized the work of the army under him.

It bears the date of March 28 and McDowell was still bearing the burden of having permitted what was almost a pronounced Union victory in the first battle of Bull Run to be turned into not only defeat, but a complete rout of his command. Mr. Chase had evidently read some criticism of the army in the Cincinnati Commercial which struck him as well deserved and he enclosed a clipping of the article.

He wrote: "Inclosed you will find an article from the Cincinnati Commercial which I hope you will read with care." No doubt it deprecated military fuss and feathers and bemoaned the inactivity of the northern forces. "It grieves me," he continued, "to see the confidence of the country which was revived by the movement of the army of the Potomac, already lapse into distrust.

"Let me beg of you to do all that is possible to inspire vigor and energy. Permit me also to suggest the expediency of having no more reviews. The country is in no mood to hear of anything, however useful and desirable in itself, which savors of show rather than action. Think how much is to be done and how near mid-summer it is.

"If you cannot inspire activity and even dash into the army you ought to seek some other command, unless you are certain that the outcome will prove the delay to be Fubian and only a means to surer and larger success."

McIntyre En Tour

By O. O. McINTYRE

HOMEWARD BOUND, Aug. 22.—This piece is a six-days-in-one windup of the travelogues. I want to stretch out on the top deck of the liner all the way across and try to smuggle through New York customs the niftiest tan ever brought over the north Atlantic.

The passenger list is shucked down to a slim handful. The only notables I have noticed so far are Frank Noyes, Washington publisher, and Roland Hayes, the singer. Due to a blanket of fog a few miles out in the harbor our take off was held up five anxious hours.

An incoming liner, anchored the width of Fifth avenue away, was distinguishable only in asymptotic tracing—a luminously ghostly silhouette. Deck walkers ceased because of constant collisions. Fog horns groaned their two minute cacophony of despair. One joy killer doomed his life belt.

A fog lifts in the quick manner of a theatrical curtain. One minute the vista is nebulous. The next, bells ring, the ship trembles and glides away in a splash of sunshine. The great problem of seamanship to me is how seamen maintain their appetites.

I can never cling to an other wise lusty hunger for food more than three days. It completely vanishes and the rest of the way I nibble at nuts and fruit. The moment I set foot on land, however, I am ravenous. Seamen, I am told, are affected reversely. They eat little on shore.

Due to the abundance of empty cabins, a thoughtful ship officer transferred us to a de luxe suite fancifully named, "Saint Germaine." There is a private dining room, a what-I-would-call a sitting room, enormous bed room and two baths. I am leaving the front door open and sitting where I hope to be seen.

They tell of a young lady aboard returning from her first visit to Paris and who does not seem to understand that liner attendants speak English. She is also not a very good sailor. Today she rang for her steward and mumoled wanly: "Have la porter apportez my mal de mer."

There is a type of voyageur in constant sartorial exhalation. In the morning he appears in flannels and brass buttoned blue sport coat. Later in a business suit, then a golf costume for deck walking, dinner suit and for gala night full dress. At night he may round the deck in pajamas and house robe. Each day the costumes are entirely different. Not even the roughest sort of sea squelches his ardor. I often wonder where such enthusiasts came from, what they do and if they get any fun out of it. One shirt will last me an ocean and a creek.

Huge mugs of beer on the transatlantic boats are six cents in American coin and the ordinary glass of beer three cents. Cocktails are around 30 cents. It seems most American ladies order a cocktail called the Side Car.

Tucked away in many huge steamers are tiny half-lit chapels providing a sober contrast to bridge and drinking rooms and the sportive flair of the decks. I passed the one on this boat at the vesperal hour. Through the gloom faintly was the white altar of the Virgin. A thin youthful voice was singing Gounod's "Ave Maria." A gentleman in a checked suit, gaudy cap and with a huge cigar stuck his head in, quickly removed his cap and cigar and a half hour later when I passed again was standing there, immovable, transfixed.

I became totally absorbed, too, at dinner in the serving of a drink order for a pair of young honeymooners and their two guests. First was brought fresh raw peaches imbedded in a tray of ice. With silver prongs a peach was dropped into tall highball glasses and over them was poured sparkling champagne. Placed before the diners, each began prodding the peach with the prongs of a long fork and then they drank. It seemed to hit the bull's eye for in 20 minutes all were glee-oriously gleeful and talking thick.

Every time a ship nears Quarantine I'm taut with anxiety until anchor is lifted again. I'm always afraid health officers will discover I am just about to bust out with beri-beri or bubonic plague. And off I got to a barbed-wired isolation camp. But already we are nosing up the North river and in an hour will be howling along New York streets. And I'm likely to neck a few lamp posts enroute.

How To Keep Well

By DR. ROYAL S. COPELAND

HAVE you ever watched an infant gurgle with joy in his tub? Most infants seem to enjoy this daily experience. Yet there are many who cry piteously when bathed. Undoubtedly infants who do not enjoy being bathed have had bad frights in the bathtub.

The bath should be part of the daily routine and should, in addition to giving health to the child, add to its pleasure. The baby should be bathed at a regular time. It is best to bathe a nursing baby just before the second feeding.

Many mothers prefer to handle the baby on the lap. Usually it is more advantageous to use a low table. If the table is used, it should be padded at one end with a folded quilt or soft pad. Over this, place a soft towel with which the baby is to be dried.

The tub should be placed at the other end of the table. There should be a tray or rack near the table. On this will be found soap, boric acid for the eyes, vaseline for the nose, a glass of sterilized cotton swabs or toothpicks, talcum powder, diapers, pins, etc.

The baby's head and face should be washed first. Very little soap should be used on this part of the body. The head and face should be dried carefully before washing the rest of the body.

The body should be lathered with soap. The baby should then be lowered gently into the tub. In doing this, the mother holds the infant with the left hand so that the buttocks rest on the palm, and the back and head rest on the fore arm.

In this way the baby is steadied and feels secure. The mother's right hand is free and can be used to wash off the lather with a soft wash cloth.

When drying, the soft towel lying on the table should be wrapped around the baby. Drying should be slow and deliberate. All parts of the body, including all wrinkles, should be carefully dried. This will prevent chafing.

The baby's body should be gently massaged by rolling the flesh with the palm of the hand. This stimulates the circulation and hardens the skin.

Powder should never be used in excess. It is always best to use a well-recommended powder and no more than can be rubbed in gently. Loose powder on the baby is irritating.

ONCE OVER

By J. J. Mundy.

TAKE WHAT COMES!

What a lot of joy you knock out of life by the fear that for every piece of good luck you must suffer something in the way of regret.

It is easy to get into such a state of mind that the future will loom full of possible misfortunes.

But isn't it foolish to darken the present by imaginary clouds ahead?

When you have done all that is humanly possible to forestall possible ill fortune you should not take it for granted that all efforts will fail.

Worry makes you less able to stand misfortune if and when it comes.

That terrible time you picture does not make you happy, certainly.

While it is childish to build air castles of the great things in store for you it is equally absurd to go to the other extreme and anticipate trouble.

The dreamer of comforting possibilities get more out of life than the dejected pessimist.

The great thing is to keep sensible and normal in thought.

Don't picture the future too bright or too dark—take what comes and be thankful.

Others have lived through worse situations than you have conjured up and smiled and you can if you will.

It is up to you and you alone.

The Reviewing Stand

By TOM T. JONES

SECOND street on the memorable Fourth of July in 1876 when the 100th anniversary of the passing of the Declaration of Independence was celebrated was filled to overflowing. The same was said of Broadway. The town sidewalks of the day were so jammed with people that it was impossible to use them. The hotels were filled to capacity. All over the town were parked farmers' wagons. In them the country folk had come to be present at the celebration. And from them the majority of the rural visitors ate their noon-day repast.

It will be remembered by those yet living who were present that day that bells rang at midnight of that morning and continued for an hour. There was little sleep that night for early in the day a cannon, that had been procured by the residents was fired from Thompson Hill. It will be remembered also that at the 22nd round the gun was prematurely discharged. Two men were injured, one of them losing his left arm. It had been proposed to fire 38 shots, one for each of the 38 states then in the Union.

This accident marred the otherwise unusual celebration which was in keeping with those everywhere all over the country. For weeks the plans for this outstanding event had been arranged in meetings that had been held in the Enoch Bradshaw Hall in Broadway. Indeed, the outdoor exercises were held in a grove that belonged to him. This was located not far from the upper section of the present K. T. & K. pottery.

This meeting of the day was hardly carried out in full until a terrific rain and windstorm swept the locality. Arches that had been erected were blown down. A shade tree before the residence of J. M. Kelly was laid low by this storm. Another in front of the home of William Brunt had the same fate. Trees close to the Grand Central hotel and the home of J. S. Cowans also were razed. More than 1,000 persons came from the Virginia side to attend this celebration alone that day. They were brought across the river on the steamer Cordelia.

THE outstanding celebration of that day in 1876 was at Philadelphia where was held the "Centennial." This was in a sense the first World's Fair in the country. It was held in that city because there was stationed the Liberty Bell. There also the Declaration had been promulgated. Thus it came about that notwithstanding the great celebration that was held in East Liverpool many of its residents were in Philadelphia that notable day. Others went later to visit the "Centennial."

Among those who had gone to the Pennsylvania metropolis on the preceding week, June 25, were Colonel and Mrs. W. H. Vodrey, the Honorable and Mrs. Josiah Thompson and their daughter, Miss Allie Thompson; Miss Elizabeth Harker, Rev. G. W. Riddle, M. S. Hill, and Colonel H. R. Hill. The latter met Mrs. Hill and Mr. and Mrs. J. M. Kelly at Altoona, Pa.

On the Friday following, Professor W. L. Thompson, Charles Thompson, H. S. Knowles, Ned Pearson and others left the city for Philadelphia. Professor Thompson was also enroute to Europe. On July 12 he sailed from New York on the Don Pedro. On Monday, June 25, Jason Brookesland Wesley McKinnon had also gone to Philadelphia. These and others of the city were thus privileged to be at this celebration. Then President Grant visited the city. Fifty years later on the 150th anniversary of the Declaration it was Calvin Coolidge as the Chief Executive of the country who graced the Sesqui-Centennial.

Excursions as low as $7 were run to Philadelphia during the Centennial in 1876. It was necessary to remain in Pittsburgh, overnight if one wished to have a daylight trip. On occasions people left here by boats on Sundays in oreder to catch the early trains from the Smoky City to Philadelphia.

The "Old Band" directed by William Manley was on the 100th celebration one of the active organizations. It went about serenading some of the leading citizens of the town that night following the fireworks when George Washington was depicted on horseback at a cost of $80. This latter was regarded as an outstanding accomplishment at the time.

THE most popular piece given out by this band on that day was entitled "Ye Olden Times." It was a general favorite and elicited much favorable comment from the many who heard it. Then there was a Silver Cornet Band that also took part in the musical offerings of the day. Beautiful rosettes were given its members by young ladies of the city.

There was general fear that the boys of that day would get into the fireworks or find their way into the dangerous zone. Thus it came about that Mayor M. H. Foutts at the suggestion of the general committee in charge of the celebration named special policemen to look after the lads. In this capacity they had the power of officers for the day. They were John Bagley, P. Rough, John Brannon, George Peach, Frederick Wilson, James Leigh, Charles Allison, P. Ferguson, Smith Fowler, Al McClure, William Hall, E. Bradshaw, John Gardner, Samuel McHenry, J. Manley, the Rev. Mr. Brindley, Hugh McCarron, John Taylor, Loomis Kinsey, and Drs. Ikert, Ogden and Gardner.

The cannon that was procured for the day was later to have become the property of the then village of East Liverpool. It was to be used on all important occasions. But always it was necessary to have the permission of the mayor. The cannon was mounted upon a carriage some nights before the celebration. Then it was hauled down Second street and taken to the carriage shop of Agner Foutts & company. There it was painted and placed in readiness for the firing of 38 rounds on the morning of the aninversary. It was finally taken to its position upon Thompson Hill by two mules.

Another initial departure attending this celebration was the giving out of a proclamation by Mayor Foutts calling on all of the business men and the saloon operators of the period to close their places during the day.

EIGHTEEN days before this notable Fourth of July celebration in East Liverpool, Governor Rutherford B. Hayes of Ohio had been nominated by the Republicans for president of the United States. The convention was held in Cincinnati. Governor Hayes had been generally regarded for the vice presidency. James G. Blaine was the leading Republican candidate.

At that time Governor Hayes weighed 190 pounds. Mrs. Lucretia Hayes, his wife, was then declared to be one of the most beautiful women in Ohio. The preaching of Henry Ward Beecher in the Plymouth church at Brooklyn, N. Y., caused his congregation to pay him $20,000 per annum. The Fourth of July that year fell on Tuesday.

MOON of DELIGHT

by Margaret Bell Houston

SYNOPSIS: The marquesa tells Nelly Belaise that her guest, Senorita Flores, is engaged to a nobleman. But this false story fails to prevent the senorita's falling in love with Nelly's grandson, Kirk, to whom she feels bound to confess her identity as Juanita Basara, cigarette girl in Divitt's gambling house. At Adrian Fouche's party she hears of Divit's mystery girl, the veiled "Moon of Delight," so called by Eric Ledbetter, in his false boast of a successful conquest of her. Eric, whose insulting remarks in Divitt's courtyard Juanita recalls, is not present, but she is hurt when Kirk seems to believe the gossip about the Moon. Hearing of Juanita's engagement, Kirk tells her he'll not give her up. That night the marquesa, drunk despite a pledge given Divitt, tells her that Divitt doesn't want her to marry.

Chapter 28.

THE MOON'S INFLUENCE.

BOBBY CRANSHAW'S dinner was a glittering success, perhaps the most lavish thing in the way of favors and exclusive in the way of guests that Mrs. Cranshaw, addicted to lavishment and exclusiveness, had attempted that year.

She had intended that the party should repair to the ball room upstaids for an after-dinner dance, but Bobby had become involved in promises with La Petite Theatre du Vieux Carre. Perhaps it was just as well.

The Easter season was so crowded with dances that the musicians never did themselves justice, and she herself was due at another affair before the evening was over.

Mrs. Cranshaw looked in on Bobby's dinner as she went out, a sumptuous figure in white velvet and ermine cloak, Mr. Cranshaw just behind her. They came in ("Don't rise, my dears!" speaking to the marquesa particularly, and to Jpanita; making little general greetings.

"Pretty girl, the Senorita Flores," said Mrs. Cranshaw as they rode away. Mr. Cranshaw nodded. "But the marquesa," he added, "is a frump." "Marquesas can't be frumps," said the lady.

The papers had heralded the Cranshaw dinner, and Molly had apparently read them, for a new dress awaited Juanita's return. There was no new dress for the marquesa, however, and no time for her to select one.

Kirk had delayed bringing them into town until almost the last minute. Juanita had not wavered in her refusal to marry him on Thursday, and he felt more content with her in Biloxi. The Tijon was in New Orleans, he reminded himself, and the marquesa had announced her intention of returning to it with Juanita.

"No," said Nelly. "You are to go to our house when you return. Pompey and Sadie (Sadie was Pompey's wife) "have everything ready for you." The marquesa had expected to go there for the night, but later—

"Later," said Nelly, "you are to come back here. How do you expect me to stay without you?"

"You'll be going back yourself, old dear," Kirk said. "You're nearly well."

Nelly had known nothing of Kirk's plans for an immediate marriage, nor of Juanita's refusal to marry him at all.

Nelly would have opined that Kirk, the host, had even less right to insist on marriage than he had to propose it.

But even Nelly could see that the marquesa was determined to end her visit with them in either place.

Juanita wondered. Was it because the marquesa had made such a comedy of herself the night of Adrian's dinner, or had Divitt ordered her return?

The marquesa, Juanita knew, kept in not infrequent touch with Divitt.

On the evening of her return from Caprice she had telephoned him asking for her lorgnettes, making casual reference to their outing in the yacht, to the presence of Madame Fouche and Adrian. . . Juanita could hear her without listening. They could all hear her. Singurarly enough, the lorgnettes had never come.

Again, the sea wind had blown into Juanita's room one night a bit of paper and she had picked it up and read it, supposing it a note for herself.

The words had made no sense. Apparently it was something in code and unfinished. But it was the marquesa's writing, and the marquesa being out, Juanita had carried it back to the place from which it probably had blown, the marquesa's desk.

Next day the marquesa had put the paper into an envelope and addressed it to Divitt.

The incident had troubled Jpanita somewhat. Inevitably she had suspected that the letter was about herself.

Divitt was keeping a watch on her movements through the marquesa, and anybody could see what was going on between herself and Kirk.

Divitt did not intend that she should marry and leave and perhaps betray him. How easily she could have married Kirk and escaped both Divitt and the marquesa! Yet Kirk himself had barred that way. "What do you expect a girl in that place? . . . . . They all have fantastic tales. . . . . Always unwilling . . . ."

When his kind eyes had looked at her those nights in the parlor, sustaining her, he had been taking it for granted that she was a mere woman of the streets . . . A fantastic tale indeed! . . .

He would listen kindly, if she told it to him, imploring him to believe. His eyes would be as kind as they had been in Divitt's.

He might even affect to believe her . . . "What was she before she went there?" he had asked. That other thing she had had to tell him.—How could she tell him now? How could she tell him anything?

The marquesa consented to spend the rest of the week at the Standard home, but Monday she must return to the Tijon. Juanita was glad of this firm decision, regretful only of the delay.

Kirk's importunities, silent and spoken, were becoming more than she could bear.

"You love this other man, Juanita," he had said, and Juanita had not denied, permitting the marquesa's fiction to shelter her.

But Kirk on their last evening in Biloxi had demanded a more definite confirmation of his words. They had been sitting together on the veranda, a little apart from Nelly and the marquesa. Adrian and his mother having returned home.

"Is that it, Juanita?" Kirk had asked. "You love him best, after all?"

She had answered after a pause, "The past has its hold on us."

"What sort of hold?" Kirk asked. "Is it love?"

But she had said "Don't ask me any more."

After a time he told her, "You aren't going on to California, as the masquesa says. You are going back to Spain."

And she had answered, truthfully enough, "I don't know where I'm going."

It had been useless for him to say, as he had said next day inone of their brief instants alone, "You are not happy, Juanita. Even if you won't marry me, let me do something—anything—to help you."

They had just ridden in from Biloxi. The marquesa was scuttling up the stair, following Pompey and their bags.

In the dim hall Kirk had caught Juanita's hand, holding her back. She had smiled up at him, leaving her hand in his, knowing an instant's poignant happiness.

"I am happy," she said with brave, soft eyes; had turned from him, following the marquesa to their rooms.

And there on the bed had lain the new dress—black tulle with a line of red roses and a little spangled fan.

Juanita wore the dress that evening, coming down the stair to find Kirk waiting, tall in his evening clothes, his eyes troubled, yet lighting at sight of her.

The marquesa had on the red satin dress with the beaded red cape she had worn at the Comus ball. She seemed cross and rather abstracted, yet alert whenever Kirk spoke to Juanita, however casually, as they rode to the Cranshaws.

Perhaps, if the place cards were kind, he would sit next to Juanita, reflected Kirk, and surely they would dance after dinner.

Juanita's change of heart could not last. It had come too suddenly, had taken place almost before his eyes that night at Tarpon Point. Something had been said—he could not account for it.

Moon of Delight had started it. If the men in their alcoholic mirth had accused him of having an affair with the Moon; if he himself had expressed to Juanita any hysterious attraction to the Moon, he could have understood it.

But he had taken care to do just the reverse, and she had resented even that.

DEAF TO ATTEND CHURCH SERVICE

An unusual departure will characterize the Sunday school and later morning service at the First United Presbyterian church tomorrow morning when A. U. Downing, a teacher in the Pennsylvania School for the Deaf at Pittsburgh, Pa., will interpret the Sunday school lesson and the later sermon by Dr. C. K. George of Steubenville, Ohio, to about 25 deaf persons who will attend from this city, Toronto, Wellsville, Lisbon, Salem and Beloit, O., and Beaver Falls, Pa.

Not only will he interpret the things said in Sunday school and church service but also the singing.

Prof. Downing visited the church last summer and carried out a similar service which attracted many to it. Dr. McGeorge who will preach in the absence of Dr. L. J. Davison who is absent on his vacation, is the pastor of the Second United Presbyterian church of Steubenville.

Arrangements for the coming o Prof. Downing here from his home in Wilkinsburg, Pa., were made by W. W. Sloan, the superintendent of the church's Sunday school.

Magnetized writing was recently demonstrated by a scientist who fashioned a pencil out of a piece of magnetized iron and scratched with it on a thin plate of hardened steel.

10 - MONTH LEASE

Teaching Corps of 29 Instructors Now Complete.

CHESTER—The first floor storeroom of the Ward building in Carolina avenue has been leased for 10 months by the Chester Independent district school board for use as a class room to relieve overcrowded conditions in the public schools during the next term, Superintendent A. L. Rabenstein announced today.

Work has been started to equip the room for school purposes. The interior will be repaired, black boards and seats installed and other improvements made. The room will accomodate 35 pupils. The Ward building was selected by the school board because it is centrally located, well lighted and easily equipped.

The work will be completed by the latter part of next week to have the room ready for occupancy at the opening of the 1931-32 term on Tuesday, September 1, Rabenstein said, when approximately 1,150 pupils will enter the public and parochial schools.

Four new instructors, including E. M. Hartley of Wellsburg, principal of the Junior High school, will be among the 29 teachers who will assume their duties here when school opens. Two of them will be in charge of the new comercial course in the high school.

BEAVER UNITS MARK GRAVES OF WAR VETS

Legion and Other Organizations Carry On Work.

MIDLAND. — Many unmarked graves in Beaver county of veterans of United States wars have been marked this summer through the efforts of the American Legion and Veterans of Foreign Wars posts and other patriotic organizations, according to Ross W. Powers of Beaver, who for the last six months has been engaged in bringing up to date the soldiers' burial docket and records kept at the county commissioners' office at Beaver.

In procuring the necessary data for the burial records, it is necessary that the graves be located in the numerous cemetaries in the county, Powers said. The soldiers' graves in the larger cemetaries are well marked as the rule, but in the older burial grounds the graves are very hard to find. The condition of some of the old, no longer u[se]d cemeteries are a "disgrace," being sort of "no man's land" grown up with vegetation until it it almost impossible to walk and the neglected graves are hardly distinguishable from the rest of the field, Powers stated.

The grave markers are furnished free by the county. A white marble headstone may be procured from the Federal government for the grave of any honorably discharged soldier, it was said.

"PIED PIPER"

W. F. Amann, known as the modern "Pied Piper," and four assistants today started a rat extermination campaign in East Liverpool.

START FIGHT AGAINST RATS

Rodent Population Here Estimated At 50,000.

A campaign to reduce the rat population of East Liverpool, which is estimated at more than 50,000 was launched here today by W. F. Amann of Washington, D. C. known as the modern "Pied Piper" and a corps of four assistants.

The campaign has the endorsement of the board of health and city officials. About four weeks time will be required in the battle against rats during which the entire city will be covered.

United States government methods will be used in the fight against the rodents. A combination of poisons, which are said to be odorless and tasteless, slow acting and which drives the rats into the open for air and water, will be used in the campaign.

The group of experts will first work in the industrial district, next in the wholesale district, then in the retail section and last in the residential section. At the conclusion of the campaign here the experts will work in Chester, Newell and Wellsville.

Rats do $400,000,000 damage in the United States each year, according to government statistics. It would take an army of 200,000 men to produce as much food as is eaten and destroyed by rats each year. One-half of this represented by grain, would take 5,000,000 acres to be produced. Rats destroy more each year on the farm than taxes cost.

BERLIN—Folks who cannot afford a car may be able to get around in a Sturmvogel. F. Foch has built a little airplane which he calls the Storm Bird for $220. It has a wing spread of 26 feet, is powered with a 15 horsepower motor and can make 47 miles an hour. A workingmen's aviation organization supplied the money and will use the plane.

SEAWEED BREAD LIKED ON COAST

By The United Press.

OJAI, Calif.—There's something new under the sun all the time—if an old proverb may be contradicted.

For this describes the baking and selling of bread made of kelp, better known as "seaweed," which started in this town, located only a short distance from the Pacific Ocean.

William Baker specializes in producing this bread and says there is quite a demand for it. "The kelp gives the bread a peculiar flavor," he said.

WINNER of Sterling Slogan Contest . . . Will be Announced as Soon as Possible

THOUSANDS of excellent slogans have been submitted. There are so many good ones that it will take a couple of weeks for the judges to choose the best. But, just as soon as a decision is made, the winner will be announced in this paper.

We Hope for A SLOGAN AS GOOD AS THE GASOLINE

THE new Sterling Crystal Clear Anti-Knock Gasoline has only been on the market two months. Yet, in that brief period, it has become a sensational success! Car drivers have never before in their experience been able to secure a motor gasoline that does so many things well.

It is known as an anti-knock fuel. But that is only one feature of its value to a motor. Refined from Pennsylvania Crude it has those characteristics that were so famous in the old Sterling—responding to the accelerator like a hound straining at the leash—actually recording more miles to the gallon because of its freedom from incombustible matter—putting that power into a motor that only the very finest premium gasolines have ever before been able to boast.

All these things in the new Sterling Anti-Knock are present in their most efficient form. But the most surprising thing is the uniformity with which they are blended—making no one feature stand out jaggedly but permitting all to work together to make the motor that smooth running mechanism the engineers intended it to be.

It is a slogan suitable to a uniform gasoline like this that we hope for. Out of the thousands submitted, may the judges find one that tells this story in a few words.

Incidentally, have you tried the new Sterling gasoline?

The Indispensible Element—Sacrifice

"Hereby perceive we the love of God, because he laid down his life for us; and we ought to lay down our lives for the brethren." I. John 3:16.

Sacrifice is the indispensable element in the Christian Religion. But there is danger of losing this most essential element. The passion of the world at present is not expended up how it can best give itself. Life seems just now to be more studiously concerned as to how it can most effectually collect for itself.

In places there is cheap complaint about the cost of Christianity and the maintenance of the Church. There is necessity during these days of depression for the curtailing of expenses, but should we begin with the church?

The Christian religion is costly and shall continue to be, but no man who is genuinely concerned over the higher calls of Christianity will be frightened by the thought of cost. If you are looking for a cheap religion or a cheap church don't join the church that Christ purchased with his own blood. The church will tax you heavily in energy, time and means. But there is a challenge in the great outstanding fact, that has written the story of religion all across the world in the reddest blood of sacrifice. We cannot sit under the glowing example of our Lord's great sacrifice of himself and fail to feel the conclusion the Apostle wrote here, that we ought to lay down our lives for the brethren.

Are you looking for a comfortable place in this badly broken needy world where you can find a shelter from cost, and where there will be no conserption that will send you far beyond any feeling of ease. If you are the Church of Jesus Christ is no place for you.

What was it that made the Great War at its very worst moments an irresistible challenge to strong courageous youth and sent them in solid phalanx running out to meet it? Was it ease, and avoidance of all those things we call sacrifice? Was it an offered shelter from flying shells and the smell of death? Oh no, every one of us must remember that in days when hatred and destruction get the call and sacrifice is necessary it is sure to catch the ear of eager youth and they turn not back from any campaign.

Our power, or ability is our obligation. The Apostle is measuring our obligations beside the sacrifice of Jesus Christ, and standing before it we conclude there can be no human escape from cost. Do we dare complain of cost. It killed our Lord. It surely ought to crush our very souls. We are not here to collect our dues, we are here to pay our debts. We must make some contribution to the cause of Christ, give ourselves in service to humanity. What real sacrifice are we making? Blood is the price of all that is worth while. Your blood is demanded. Some are thinking only of ease and exemption. They want to be saved for what they can get and not for what they can do. They are thinking of the shining crown, the white robe, the mansion prepared for them. But sacrificial service comes first. Yes, sacrificial service is blood service.

"We lay in dust life's glory dead,
And from the ground there blossoms, red,
Life that shall endless be."

NEWSIES OVERCOME SIX-RUN LEAD TO WIN

LAUGHLINS LOSE IN IMPORTANT BATTLE AT CHESTER, 7 TO 6

George Cebula's Pair of Singles Prove Fatal To Newell; Tilt Called at End of Fifth as Visitors Object.

BY ROBERT ELLIOTT,
Sports Editor, The Review.

GEORGE Cebula, a boy who was not supposed to be able to hit left-handed twirling, pounded out two vicious singles last evening at Chester and they gave the Newsies a 7-6 triumph over the Homer Laughlins in one of the most bitterly-fought Community loop tilts ever staged.

The tilt was called by Umpire Willis Hall in the last half of the fifth inning when Cebula's poke had driven in Ty Connors with the seventh and winning tally. The Laughlins objected strenuously to the calling of the game but Hall stuck to his guns so now the Laughlins are trailing the Newsmen by a little more than two games.

Sad Story

The story of the battle is sad, sad indeed from a Newell standpoint. The losers shelled Earl Springer from the hill in a third inning attack that netted six scores. That lead looked terribly big to the fans but not to this Chester club that doesn't know when it's licked.

Right back in the last of the third came the Newsies, driving Bus Simpson from the mound with a four-run splurge. Neither club scored in the fourth and Al Johnson turned back the Laughlins in the first of the fifth.

Then Perc Wyant, who had relieved Simpson in the third and had been socked for a single by Georgie Cebula that scored two men, got into trouble. Pete Cebula, the first man up, worked Wyant for a walk. Mike Cebula then plastered a neat double in the right field corner and Pete ambled to third. Connors also walked, clogging the sacks.

Simpson Knocked Out.

McKown then dribbled a hit down the third base line and Pete Cebula scored and the bases were still filled. Thorne then let Wyant's next pitch go through to the backstop and Mike scored the tying run. Wyant then shoved a fast ball through to George Cebula and he smashed it a mile-a-minute between second and first, plating Connors with the winning score.

Ten men batted in the losers' big third inning. Simpson singled to center, Watson sacrificed and Finley singled. Then Springer walked Bailey and Glumac and Schultz and Digman singled. This was enough for Springer and Johnson went in. McConnell struck out but Thorne reached second when Campbell threw his grounder away. Johnson whiffed Simpson for the third out.

Johnson popped to short to start the Chester half of the third. However, Campbell walked, Polock singled, and Pete Cebula doubled before Simpson got Mike on a grounder to third. He then walked Connors and McKown and Wyant took up the hurling duty. He had two strikes and one ball on George Cebula and then shoved one through the groove and the batter placed in right field for a single. Ralph Springer bounced out to end the inning.

Bambino Hits 35th Home Run

Blow at St. Louis is Also 600th of Career.

By The Associated Press.

Babe Ruth has made 600 home runs in his major league career.

In the third inning of the Yankee-St. Louis game yesterday he drove one of George Blaeholder's offerings far over the bleacher roof at Sportsmans Park. It was his 35th four bagger of the current season and brought his total for the 18 years of his major league career up to 600, a mark never before attained or even threatened by any other major leaguer. The Babe reclaimed the pellet from the youngster who found it out in Grand Boulevard, giving in exchange $10 reward and a new autographed ball.

The homer started the Yanks off on the winning rally in their 11-7 victory over the Browns. Lou Gehrig duplicated the swat a moment later.

Hammer 24 Hits.

Philadelphia's champion Athletics and the Chicago White Sox hammered out 24 hits between them and although the Sox had a 14-10 edge in the hitting, Philadelphia won 15 to 12.

Washington's batters rammed out a total of 15 hits off Clint Brown and Pete Jablonowski to take the fourth game of the series from Cleveland, 6 to 3, after losing the first three.

Boston and Detroit produced fewer hits in their clash but seven bases on balls off Eddie Durham and Wilcy Moore than made up for the absence of blows and the Sox tossed in five errors to make things easy for the Tigers to walk off with an 11 to 5 triumph.

Only one game in the National league survived a spell of threatened weather. In it, the Boston Braves took a close battle from the Pittsburgh Pirates by a 2 to 1 count to increase their margin to 1 1-2 games in the struggle for fifth place. Wally Berger's 17th homer was the important blow as Benn Cantwell held the Pirates to six hits while Boston made seven off Ervin Brame.

Potters Supply	5	8	.385
Wilk Bakers	1	10	.090

The Community league, at a meeting in the Y. M. C. A. Friday night, decided to extend its 1931 season through the week of September 8 in order to take care of five postponed games which have piled up in the last few weeks. Chester and Wellsville were not represented and therefore lost any voice in deciding whether the extra weeks should be played or on what days the postponed tilts will take place.

Thirteen games remain in the league. Four will be played next week, five the following week and four the last week.

Chester, leading the league by a trifle more than two games, participates in eight of the remaining 13 tilts, Newell in six, the Potters in five and the Wilk Bakers in seven.

It was also decided to start all of the games that are left at 5:30 in order to get seven innings in if possible. The teams will be allowed 15 minutes grace after this time but whenever both teams have nine players on the field at 5:30 or any time after that, the game will be started by the umpires.

The Little World series will probably get under way the week of Sept. 13. The schedule of games left in the league follow:

Aug. 25—Wellsville at Newell.
Aug. 26—Chester at Potters Supply.
Aug. 27—Newell at Wellsville.
Aug. 28—Potters Supply at Chester.
Sept. 1—Chester at Wellsville.

Sept. 4—Newell at Chester.
Sept. 8—Chester at Wellsville.
Sept. 9—Potters Supply at Newell.

Sept. 11—Chester at Newell.

3 Britons Advance To Semis

Mrs. Moody Lone American Left at Forest Hills.

By The Associated Press.

FOREST HILLS, N. Y., Aug. 22.—Between Great Britain and her second straight triumph in the women's United States tennis championship stood today the formidable figure of Mrs. Helen Wills Moody, six-times holder of the title.

A series of smashing victories in the quarter-finals yesterday gave British stars three of the semi-final round backets with only Mrs. Moody left to carry on for the United States.

Despite the impressive manner in which Betty Nuthall, the defending champion; Phyllis Mudford and Mrs. Eileen Bennett Whittingly considered a sure semi-finalist, none is accorded better than an outside chance of halting Mrs. Moody.

Today's pairings pitted Mrs. Moody against Miss Mudford and Miss Nuthall against Mrs. Whittingstall. Mrs. Whittingstall flashing a deadly net attack, put Helen Jacobs of Berkeley, Calif., previously considered a sure semi-finalist, out in a brilliant three-set duel, 3-6, 6-3, 8-6.

Mrs. Moody dropped only three games in eliminating Dorothy Weisel of Sacramento, Calif., 6-1, 6-2, and Miss Nuthall had no more trouble with her countrywoman, Mrs. Dorothy C. Shepherd-Barran, 6-2, 6-1.

NEWELL ROYALS EDGE MOTORS

The Newell Royals continued their winning streak against the Oakland-Pontiacs, one of the better East Liverpool clubs, last evening across the river, winning 5-4. The winners were outhit, 10-8. The score:

Scoring a lone tally in the last half of the ninth inning the Green Grocers blanked the league-leading Anderson Coals in an East End pool clash last evening 1-0, and sent them back into second place, a half-game behind Carnahan Drugs, first half winners.

Barcus let the Coalers down with four hits while the Grocers collected six off Goodballet.

Carnahan Drugs had an easy time with the Madison Billiards, winning 5-0 when Greene let the losers down with a quartet of safe blows. The scores:

Don Connors, 250 pound Indian football prospect at Oklahoma A. & M., will not be eligible this fall, due to scholastic difficulties.

Entries Close On Aug. 26

Field of Teams May Hit 20; Number of Local Outfits.

With next Wednesday night the last day to file an entry in the first annual Tri-State softball tournament to be held here during the week of August 31-September 5 under the auspices of the Tri-State Junior Athletic association, many classy aggregations are expected to place their team lists and deposit their entry today.

The affair, the first of its kind ever attempted in the East Liverpool district, is attracting the attention of the leading teams not only of this city but many other surrounding towns. The club that comes through to the championship on Saturday afternoon will know it has been through one hectic struggle.

The probable victory of the Carnahan Drugs, who won the first half in the East End Softball league, in the second half pennant chase, has increased the list of possibilities for the tourney. If the Carnahans repeat their first half win, there will be no Little World series and probably all eight of the East End loop teams will enter.

Teams Listed.

Beers-Hanks, victorious over a number of good clubs, and the Purity Milks will file today while the Oakland-Pontiacs and Bill's Clothiers, East Palestine's leading aggregation, will be in Monday. Singer's Express is understood to be picking up a number of the best players in this city in an effort to come through with the title.

Dr. Smith's Dairymen, the White Front Dairies and other Midland clubs are still a little unsettled but their entries are expected to be by Wednesday at least. Stone Clothiers, Cook's Grocers, Chester Panhandles, Globe Bricks and many other clubs who are ranked with the best in the district, are counting on being present.

Entry blanks or any information on the tournament can be secured at Brian's Clothing store in East Fifth street.

Potters Advance In Race

Eddie Rose Downs Bakers in 10 Innings.

If Chink Chamberlain's Potters could beat either Newell or Chester with half as much regularity as they whip the Wilk Bakers there wouldn't be much doubt as to who will win the second half Community loop race. Last evening at Wellsville the Potters scored their fifth straight win over the Wilkmen, winning 2-1 in ten innings.

The Bakers tallied in the first frame on Coleman's double, Rose's error and Morgan's sacrifice. The Potters evened it up in the fourth when Mosser drew a walk, went to second on a sacrifice, third on a fielder's choice and in on Hancock's double.

The winning tally in the tenth came on three hits. Bob Mackall doubled to center, Hancock walked and Paul Mackall hit safely to center, filling the sacks. Bob Mackall then plated on Maley's infield single to Johnny Watson.

Eddie Rose granted the Bakers only six hits, while the winners got nine off Don Stoffel. The game was played in the fast time of one hour and 15 minutes.

FLOODS TAKE HEAVY TOLL

Death and Destruction Ride High Waters In China.

By The Associated Press.

HANKOW, Aug. 22.—Death, destruction and desolation rode the crest of flood waters down the Yangtse river today causing probably the greatest calamity in modern history.

Unknown thousands had drowned, destitute scores died daily of typhoid and dysentary while medical authorities warned that with the receding of water, probably several weeks hence, more serious epidemics will rage.

Upwards of 30,000,000 persons were said to have been made homeless by the unprecedented surge of waters in the valley. In the Wuhan cities, Hankow, Wuchang and Hanyang, 400,000 refugees were counted.

Military authorities, attempting to bring relief to refugees, fought not only the destruction of flood waters, but superstitions, which hold thousands of natives in its grip.

Over Hankow many thousands of refugees sat on roof-top, a shred of cloth hung overhead, scant protection against the boiling sun which caused the temperature to approach 100 degrees.

Many had been removed to safer places but other thousands refused to move, convinced Hankow was doomed, refusing to help themselves or to be helped and sat on their nearly submerged roofs awaiting inevitable death.

FARMERS NOW STUDY PICKLES

By The United Press.

BUTLER, Kan.—Farmers of this community envision the development of a new industry to add to their bank accounts and activity. J. Benecheid, big pickle man from Hutchinson, is urging them to raise more cucumbers. He has had to import come half a dozen carloads from Colorado annually, he said, and sees no reason why the potential pickles should not be raised in Kansas. The idea is spreading, and most farmers have their pickle patch this year.

SNAKE ENTERS HOUSE PARLOR

By International News Service.

IONIA, Mich.—A mass attack by members of the family of Mrs. Ray Mikesell, of Shiloh, ended the life of a six-foot black racer snake which intruded into the family parlor on a recent night. The snake, non-poisonous, entered the furnace in the cellar and made its way through a cold air pipe to the parlor, emerging on a register behind Mrs. Mikesell as she was reading a paper. A scream from the woman's daughter when she saw the snake brought other members of the family to the rescue.

ENGINEERS GO THROUGH ROCK

By The United Press.

WASHINGTON — Ptarmigan Wall, a hitherto impassable rock formation near the top of the Continental Divide in Glazier National park, has been conquered by engineers who have tunneled through the rock, according to the National Park service.

The new tunnel, large enough to accommodate horseback riders as well as hikers, is 7,500 feet above sea level and eliminated 10 miles of trail too rough for the ordinary visitor.

MARKETS

STOCK MARKET UP AT CLOSE

Trading in Shares is Reported Dull Saturday.

By The Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Aug. 22. — The share market sagged a little further in extremely dull trading today, but stiffened toward the close under the influence of short covering.

Rails were under moderate pressure during the early trading. New York Central sold off nearly two points, and Pennsylvania dipped a fraction, to the lowest level in 10 years. Baltimore and Ohio and New Haven lost about a point.

Oils were generally steady, although an early rise of more than a point in Standard of California was later lost. Case dropped two points, then regained its loss. Declines of about a point in American Can and American Telephone were reduced to fractions in the late trading. U. S. Steel sold off nearly a point, then recovered.

Sales were well under a half-million shares. The closing tone was moderately heavy.

Chicago.
By The Associated Press.

CHICAGO, Aug. 22.—For a few minutes, only early today wheat showed price upturns responsive to farm board disposal of 25,000,000 bushels of its huge surplus. The maximum wheat market advance was just ¼ cent a bushel. Then a general sag carried quotations to below yesterday's finish, the market sympathizing with corn weakness. Starting unchanged to ¼ cent up, wheat later showed losses all around. Corn opened ¼ off to ¼ up and soon underwent material declines, with all deliverice at a new low record for the season and stop loss selling in progress.

One of the foremost grain companies in Chicago issued a statement asserting that as far as prices were concerned the wheat-coffee barter with Brazil would have no effect on the market finally, as Brazil raises no wheat but usually imports it from Argentina. As a direct result of the deal, the statement said, the United States has now released 25,000,000 bushels of Argintine wheat for the European market at the expence of North America. It was further asserted that the wheat disposed of to Brazil would net the farm board only about 10 cents a bushel, assuming that the barter was on a basis of 40 cents a bushel and deducting freight and storage charges, about 30 cents.

Prospective heavy deliveries on Chicago September contracts did much to send the corn market downgrade. Talk was current that the largest owner of cash corn had hedged his holdings by sales of September and that in the absence of a ready commercial outlet for his corn he would probably deliver large amounts on September contracts, the first of the coming month. Lack of sufficient commercial demand to absorb such deliveries was held to foreshadow a further recession in prices. Oats declined with corn.

Provisions reflected weakness of cereals.

GIRL HELD IN TORCH SLAYING

Sweetheart of Fred Smith, Killer, Arrested on Charge of Being Accessory.

By The Associated Press.

ANN ARBOR, Mich., Aug. 22. —A warrant was issued today charging Catherine Keller, 25-year old sweetheart of Fred Smith, one of three torch killers who slew and burned two young couples last week, with being an accessory to the crime in withholding knowledge of the slaying from authorities.

The warrant was issued by Justice of the Peace Jay H. Payne on recommendation of Prosecuting Attorney Albert J. Rapp. The complaint was signed by E. L. Squires, a Washtenaw county deputy sheriff.

Miss Keller was arrested a week ago Thursday night at her home in Ypsilanti after officers had returned from escorting Smith, David Blackstone and Frank Oliver to the state prison at Jackson.

Deputy William Dailey and Detective Lieutenant Neil R. Black of the state police reported finding bloody clothing belonging to Smith and a revolver which the girl said she had loaned to Smith on occasions.

FLIERS AGAIN FORCED DOWN BY HEAVY FOGS

Lindberghs Spend Night at Shana, Fishing Village.

By The Associated Press.

NEMURO, Japan, Aug. 22.—An enormous blanket of fog veiling the jagged peaks of Iturup island defeated Colonel and Mrs. Charles A. Lindbergh today in their renewed attempt to fly from the middle Kurile islands to Nemuro.

After having been held down in the vicinity of Muroton bay, Shimushiru island, since early Wednesday, by motor trouble and fog, the Lindberghs managed to get their plane in shape again after several hours work and took off at 2:10 p. m. (12:10 a. m. East Liverpool time) today for Nemuro, 400 miles to the southwest.

Reaching the mountainous coast of Iturup, the largest of the Kuriles in about two hours, Colonel and Mrs. Lindbergh ran into heavy fog behind which lurked eight mountain peaks each 3,000 to 5,000 feet high.

At Shana the fliers were confronted with the choice of landing on the choppy bay or on a small lagoon nearby. Lindbergh chose the lagoon. It proved to be a doubtful alternative but radio advices said the landing was effected without damage to the plane's pontoons. He landed at 4:48 p. m. (2:58 a. m. East Liverpool time).

By The Associated Press.

Having spent three days fighting treacherous ocean currents and fog and tinkering with the motor at Ketoi Island and Muroton Bay, Lindbergh had been so eager to take off from the latter place that he rose at 5:40 a. m. to begin putting the engine in shape. He worked steadily until some time afternoon.

Shana, where the Lindberghs are spending tonight, has a population of about 1,000. Its chief industries are salmon hatching and fish canning. It also has a whaling station. There is a radio station, bathing beach and a weather observatory.

The landing at Shana marked the third time the Lindberghs had been forced down in attempting to fly from Petropavlosk, Kamchatka, to Nemuro, 897 miles, in one hop.

FAMED NIGHT CLUB ENTERTAINER GETS BREAK IN MOVIES

By ROBBIN COONS

HOLLYWOOD—Jimmy Durante of the goofy stage and night club team of Clayton, Jackson and Durante is a Broadway mole exposed to California sunshine, in large quantities, and he likes it.

JIMMY DURANTE

For 18 winters Durante (he pronounces the final e) and his teammates have lived by night, first in the lowly cabarets in which they made their start, later in big time shows followed by all night appearances in the biggest night clubs.

And a mole suddenly transplanted into beaming sunshine couldn't be more out of his element than was Jimmy during the first days of studio work here.

Add to that his confusion over movie technical terms, and you have a minor comedy entitled "Durante in Hollywood, or a Free Show from Broadway."

Durante supports William Haines in his new "Wallingford" picture. Jackson, who came with him, plays golf and, I suppose, kibitzes, and Clayton is to follow shortly. There's a chance the three of them may do a feature together.

NO "UPS"

Durante is famous on Broadway as the originator of the "So I ups to him" expression, but not once did he use it in telling of his Hollywood woes attendant to initiation in studiowork:

"When the call comes for 'speed,' I think they mean for me to hurry up, so I dash through my lines fast as I can. Then I find out they mean for the cameras to get going.

"Once when the marker boy claps his hands I think he's calling for me, so I walks off the set and goes over to him. And I come back and find I've spoiled the scene. He was only getting things started, or something, and didn't want me at all.

"Funny thing," he went on reminiscently, "they aren't putting me in any of the pretty sets around here.

"Every time they have a fine hotel or ballroom scene I get ready to do my stuff, but Sam Wood—he's the director—steps up and clamps my spirits down with the word that I just wait outside."

VALUABLE NOSE

"It's true that in such a set Jimmy could serve only as effective contrast, but his singular lack of beauty has proved a strong asset in his career.

Variously known as "Shnozzle" and "Cyrano"—nicknames amply explained by one view of his bulbous, elongated nose — Durante springs from the same madhouse school of wit as produced the Marx brothers, inexplicable lunatics of stage and screen.

AMERICAN

George O'Brien opens a new bag of tricks in his latest Fox picture, "A Holy Terror," which will show at the American today and Sunday. This popular leading man, who devotes most of his activities to outdoor romances, portrays a role that was tailored to his measure, inasmuch as he is an expert horseman and a licensed airplane pilot.

He performs a series of hazardous tricks on horseback and crashes his airplane into the bathroom of a beautiful girl. Sally Eilers, a most unique manner of introducing oneself. This incident, however, leads to romance and to happiness, though in the meantime the hero meets with a series of adventures.

O'Brien porrtays the role of a young society polo player who attempts to run to earth the man he has reason to believe shot and killed his father. The trail takes him to Wyoming where he finds his man, whose identity startles George in a climax too good to reveal here.

O'Brien plays in a thrilling polo game in one of the early scenes of the picture, and, later, rides a bucking broncho in addition to the many other stunts, once more proving, beyond question, that he has no peer in this character role.

STATE

In "Young As You Feel," his latest Fox starring picture, Will Rogers discards the personal habits of a lifetime and appears for the first time on stage or screen as a well groomed Bond street tailored gentlemen.

Rogers has not gone Hollywood. His striking wardrobe is a definite part of the very human characterization Rogers portrays as "Lemuel Morehouse," dyspeptic, grouchy old fogey who is compelled to turn ultra modern as an example for his two sons.

"Young As You Feel," which is the screen version of George Ade's hilarious play, "Father and the Boys" and which opens at the State theater Sunday, deals with the widowed father of two modern sons, a man who has devoted his life to their interest and who wishes them to settle down to business and become happy, contented husbands.

The boys, however, have other ideas. One goes in heavily for society, while the other makes of sport a mania. Then Rogers resorts to desperate measures. A revolution takes place in his character, brought about by a chance meeting with a professional entertainer, portrayed by Fifi Dorsay, with whom Rogers made so much hilarity in "They Had to See Paris."

From a staid, opiuionated dyspeptic, set-in-his ways old fogey Rogers changes overnight into a gay blade. His neglect of business is appalling to his general manager, played by Lucien Littlefield, and a decided shock to his sons; but Rogers and Fifi ignore all protests and continue their wild rounds of night clubs and race tracks.

Gossip begins to fly which is just the needed element to bring his sons to their senses and make them setile down to business.

CERAMIC

A tremendous combination of acting talent, directorial genius, writing wisdom and music-making magic have been woven into a thrilling and joyous motion picture entertainment, "The Smiling Lieutenant."

Bringing Maurice Chevalier back to the screen after his European tour in another rollicking romance which combines all the attractive features of his former screen successes, "The Smiling Lieutenant" comes to the Ceramic theater for a four-day run, starting Sunday.

Two gorgeous leading ladies, the brunette Claudette Colbert, the blond Miriam Hopkins, keep things lively for the smiling Frenchman, whose voice, recently given to thrilling radio audiences, will have full opportunity to express his personality in song in "The Smiling Lieutenant." Charlie Ruggles, the joyous inebriate of a score of film hits, gives of his laugh-making talents to this new picture.

The story deals with a sprightly lieutenant of the guards, madly in love with a charming cabaret entertainer, for whom he is willing to scarifice the joys of bachelorhood. Before he can accomplish his purpose, however, he is snatched up by a princess who mistakes his smile for a proposal, and forces him into unwilling matrimony. After marriage he forsakes his dowdy wife for happiness with the girl of his choice. But his wife, determined to win his regard, learns the secrets of charm from his sweetheart, and tears his heart between love with duty or without.

Into this humorous, yet sincere, love story, Chevalier has woven his inimitable personality, emphasizing his joy in the romance in song.

of making their "five year plan" succeed.

They get from America machines, engineers, and credit to buy now, to buy more.

"Big Business" is simply superior intelligence, selfish, but no more selfish than the man, in the story, that owned two pigs.

Ask him to give you one of the pigs, and you'll get an answer as cold as you get from General Electric, A. T. & T., Standard Oil of Indiana, or any big railroad. Big business, and little business, big men and little men, are alike.

NEW YORK supplies the usual news item. "Behind the soiled brick walls of a dilapidated loft building, only six blocks from prohibition headquarters, a $1,000,000 liquor plant is discovered, with 16,000 gallons of alcohol, enough to supply at least "2,301,000 high powered drinks." This little tribute to the prohibition law was turning out 15,000 gallons of alcohol every two days. With tens of thousands of secret stills in the United States, what is the total production of bootleg alcohol?

CAPTAIN HAWKS, champion American flier, continues his career. His latest record is a flight from New York to Fort Worth, Texas, in seven hours and 57 minutes. He says there was a good deal of snow, 14,000 feet up. On the way back, Hawks expects to break nine or 10 inter-city records.

THOMAS B. CAMPBELL, Montana wheat farmer, who showed Russia how to plant 30,000,000 acres, says the president should allow the unemployed to join the army and navy, for six months or a year, to supply them with food and clothing.

Supplying a man with uniform and other equipment and pay for six months would be more than the cost of his living at home, worse than the "dole."

The navy finds one good feature in the unemployment situation. Within the last year, there were only 45 desertions, compared with more than a thousand in 1927.

LORAIN, O.—"Ask Frank."

That cryptic advice is handed to anyone who asks a question at the Lorain police headquarters, Frank being Franklin J. Steadman, secretary to Police Chief Theodore Walker.

If Frank can't answer, further time around the station in search of the desired information is just so much time wasted.

"Is the chief in." "Who does Cleveland play today?" Where's the mayor?" "When does the next car leave for Toledo?" "What's the population of Polkberry Siding?" Frank has had all these, and thousands more, fired at him.

BETTMAN GIVES RULING.

By The Associated Press.

COLUMBUS, O., Aug. 22.—In an opinion to Prosecutor James M. Aungst of Stark county, Attorney General Bettman held that the present method of selecting grand and petit jurors from a jury wheel will remain in operation until August 1, 1932, when the new code becomes fully operative. He said, however, that the new law became effective last August 1, and that it requires that jury commissioners be appointed within 30 days after that time.

WED IN HASTE—IT LASTS

You see, they've been wed 65 years and were married only five days after they met. Mrs. Berry's advice to younger married women is, "If girls helped their husbands more nowadays, there wouldn't be so many divorces." She helped Napoleon make bricks when he ran a brick yard.
